Retfalvi, A. (1980). Les expositions de l'année au Canada, 1979 / The Year's Exhibitions in Canada, 1979. RACAR : Revue d'art canadienne / Canadian Art Review, 7(1-2), 116–125. <https://doi.org/10.7202/1076886ar> really attract attention in the international community – to which they do not, perhaps, aspire. This thrust is in marked contrast to Sybille Pantazzi's 'partial survey' from Toronto libraries of magazines for the period 1900 to 1940, where one sees the infiltration of recognizable period statement as a result of artists' graphic illustration. Combined with the scarcity of reproductions during that period, the predominance of illustration by members of the Royal Canadian Academy of Arts, Ontario Society of Artists, and the Group of Seven doubtless explains the rise of indigenous professional artists whose names now define Canadian art. This phenomenon is a modest version of that discussed in The Art Press for the older international periodicals: whatever their perceived value as they were issued, they became reference works – with a mercantile consideration in direct ratio to the number of artists whose names had become famous and the number of original art works they contained between their covers.

For this reason alone, the succession of reproductive techniques and their authors, whether in wood-engraving or lithography, colour half-tones or the now omnipresent photo-mechanical processes, is a virtually inexhaustible resource for anyone studying periodicals within a sufficiently large developmental sequence to appreciate their true nature. As sources for tomorrow's social historians, they should be looked after to assure a complete range of quality and content rather than a series of stridently sectarian or commercially-viable statements.

The problems indirectly posed by the appearance of The Art Press and The Art and Pictorial Press in Canada are just as important as the information they contain, whose quantity and nuance can only be summarized rather than reviewed in these pages. Journals are increasingly taken for granted, at least until their disappearance. Few, however, are really missed: the editors of The Art Press admit this severe and inevitable historical selection in deeming perhaps 500 to 1000 (a bare 10 per cent) of the production of the last two centuries as 'worth thoroughly investigating,' that is, as having some lasting value. Both publications should be mandatory reading for anyone concerned with a permanent record of the arts, as they provide case studies in the establishment and maintenance of an art press tradition for countries where that tradition is either recent or discontinuous.

Cette rubrique est consacrée aux expositions organisées par les musées canadiens, soit à titre individuel soit en collaboration, et elle ne retient que les expositions qui ont donné lieu à la publication d'un catalogue ou d'un feuillet documentaire indiquant la liste des œuvres. Pour les expositions itinérantes (indiquées par un astérisque) nous n'indiquons que les dates où l'exposition fut présentée dans le musée responsable de l'organisation, même si d'autres présentations eurent lieu avant ou après ces dates. Si une exposition a été organisée pour être présentée uniquement dans des institutions autres que celle qui l'a organisée, la date et le lieu de la première présentation sont indiqués sous le nom de l'institution qui en fut responsable. Le titre du catalogue ou du feuillet documentaire n'est indiqué que s'il est différent du titre de l'exposition. Dans la mesure du possible, les informations reçues ont été vérifiées dans les publications elles-mêmes.

The following bibliographic record documents exhibitions originated or co-originated by Canadian institutions, when such exhibitions were accompanied by a catalogue or a handlist (a numerical listing). Circulating exhibitions (indicated by an asterisk) bear the exhibition dates of the originator only, regardless of whether other showing occurred prior to or after those dates. When such exhibitions were intended only for circulation in other institutions, the date and place of first showing is given under the name of the organizer. Unless otherwise indicated, the title of the accompanying publication is that of the exhibition. Information supplied has been verified where possible against the publications themselves.
