

First Peoples Child & Family Review

An Interdisciplinary Journal Honouring the Voices, Perspectives, and Knowledges of First Peoples through Research, Critical Analyses, Stories, Standpoints and Media Reviews

Foreword

Tara Hanson

Volume 6, Number 1, 2011

URI: <https://id.erudit.org/iderudit/1068891ar>

DOI: <https://doi.org/10.7202/1068891ar>

See table of contents

Publisher(s)

First Nations Child and Family Caring Society of Canada

ISSN

1708-489X (print)

2293-6610 (digital)

Explore this journal

Cite this document

Hanson, T. (2011). Foreword. First Peoples Child & Family Review, 6(1), 4–4.
<https://doi.org/10.7202/1068891ar>

Copyright © Tara Hanson, 2011

This document is protected by copyright law. Use of the services of Érudit (including reproduction) is subject to its terms and conditions, which can be viewed online.

<https://apropos.erudit.org/en/users/policy-on-use/>

This article is disseminated and preserved by Érudit.

Érudit is a non-profit inter-university consortium of the Université de Montréal, Université Laval, and the Université du Québec à Montréal. Its mission is to promote and disseminate research.

<https://www.erudit.org/en/>

First Peoples Child & Family Review

An Interdisciplinary Journal Honoring the Voices, Perspectives and Knowledges of First Peoples through Research, Critical Analyses, Stories, Standpoints and Media Reviews

Volume 6, Number 1, 2011, p.4

Foreword

Tara Hanson
Director of Knowledge and Partnership
Development,
The Alberta Centre for Child, Family and
Community Research

Introduction to The Call to Action

In 2009, The Alberta Centre for Child, Family and Community Research (The Centre) supported a rigorous systematic review to identify promising practices to improve health outcomes for First Nations, Inuit and Métis communities. The full report, “Healthy Moms, Babies and Children: Improving the Health of Aboriginal Populations in Canada” is available at www.research4children.com.

An analysis of the most recent evidence indicated that investments could be made in five areas to improve the well being of Aboriginal peoples. The Call to Action blends the research and rationale to recommend investments

- Preconception and Sexual Health
- Midwifery and other Birthing Support Models
- Parenting
- Child and Youth Leadership and Empowerment
- Community and School-Based Lifestyle Strategies

In consultation with The Centre’s Aboriginal Advisory Committee, the Call to Action was developed with the intention that it be used for advocacy, program planning, policy development and future research. You are invited to share your response to the Call to Action through an online survey available at <http://www.research4children.com/admin/contentx/default.cfm?PageId=88864>.

This is the second issue honoring the partnership between The First Nations Child and Family Caring Society of Canada and The Alberta Centre for Child, Family and Community Research (The Centre). The Centre is a not-for-profit, charitable organization that is primarily funded by the Alberta Ministry of Children and Youth Services and operates arms-length from government. Our mission is to collaboratively develop, support and integrate evidence across sectors and disciplines to provide a strong foundation for identifying and promoting effective public policy and service delivery to improve the well-being of children, families, and communities.

For more information about The Centre please visit our website at www.research4children.com.

Tara Hanson,
Director of Knowledge and Partnership
Development
The Alberta Centre for Child, Family and Community Research