Ontario History

Contributors

Volume 103, Number 2, Fall 2011

URI: https://id.erudit.org/iderudit/1065463ar DOI: https://doi.org/10.7202/1065463ar

See table of contents

Publisher(s) The Ontario Historical Society

ISSN

0030-2953 (print) 2371-4654 (digital)

Explore this journal

Cite this document

(2011). Contributors. Ontario History, 103(2), 149–149. https://doi.org/10.7202/1065463ar

Copyright © The Ontario Historical Society, 2011

This document is protected by copyright law. Use of the services of Érudit (including reproduction) is subject to its terms and conditions, which can be viewed online.

https://apropos.erudit.org/en/users/policy-on-use/

This article is disseminated and preserved by Érudit.

Érudit is a non-profit inter-university consortium of the Université de Montréal, Université Laval, and the Université du Québec à Montréal. Its mission is to promote and disseminate research.

https://www.erudit.org/en/stood before. Our memory should justly consign him to the list as another, very late casualty of the Great War that so altered our culture's definition of combat's psychic wounding and its elusive cure, problems besetting us still.⁶⁵

Contributors

Dennis Duffy, Emeritus Professor of English at the Uinversity of Toronto, is currently at work on a study of Ottawa's Sir Galahad statue.

Gordon L. Heath is Associate Professor of Christian History at McMaster Divinity College, McMaster University. He was formerly Director of the Canadian Baptist Archives and Assistant Professor of History at Tyndale University College. His recent books include A War with a Silver Lining: Canadian Protestant Churches and the South African War, 1899-1902 (McGill-Queen's University Press, 2009), Doing Church History: A User-friendly Introduction to Researching the History of Christianity (Toronto: Clements Publishing, 2008), and The Lost Gospel of Judas: Separating Fact from Fiction, co-author (Grand Rapids: Eerdmans, 2007).

Dr. Gregory Klages has taught Canadian history at University of Guelph-Humber and York University, in Toronto. Recent publications include Death On a Painted Lake: The Tom Thomson Tragedy, one of twelve international award-winning, book-length, bilingual websites produced as part of the Great Unsolved Mysteries in Canadian History project http://www.canadianmysteries.ca. He has forthcoming book chapters regarding historiography of Thomson's death, as well a comparative analysis of the creation of the Saskatchewan Arts Board and the Canadian Council of the Arts.

Mike Reid holds an MA in Canadian Studies and Indigenous Studies from Trent University. His research interests include moral regulation, Victorian whiteness and masculinity, the limits of state power, and Austrian economics. He works as an editorial consultant for the Ludwig von Mises Institute and as an instructor in anthropology at the University of Winnipeg's Community-Based Aboriginal Teacher Education Program.

⁶⁵ Consider Daniel Baird's recent thoughtful, non-academic account of our current perplexity about the specific origins and treatment of the psychic wounds experienced by contemporary combat veterans: "Treatment helps instill a sense of control, but in a way it never ends: one has to remain vigilant, wary of triggers and relapses into old habits and patterns of behaviour. ... I'm not optimistic that the sense of selfdoubt and brokenness, the sense of one's very self as shaky ... ever goes away" ("The Enemy Inside," The Walrus 7 #6 [July/August 2010], 49).